Waste Reduction Hero Nicola Hawkins

An artist at The Rooms studio

Nicola Hawkins transforms trash into decorative works of art. Her current exhibit Junkosphere, features a series of sculptures made from “junk” collected from around the province. Though made from trash, the work is beautiful and powerful. Drawing a connection between our consumption habits and our impact on the natural environment, Nicola’s work will make you rethink your own behavior. She also lives in an abandoned church, which she’s renovated into one of Newfoundland’s most stunning homes, by turning old wine bottles and candy dishes into stained glass. Her amazing home and art prove that we can go green in style by putting old goods to good use.
